Life Of Lt. General John Hood Told At UDC Meeting Thursday

The Appomattox Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met last Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. T. Hunter Dickerson. Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. H. G. Johnson were co-hostess.

Mrs. Calvin Robinson, President of the Chapter, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Robinson gave a report on the State Convention held in Lynchburg on October 6, 7 & 8th. She appointed a hostess committee for the new year.

Mrs. Robinson also presented the program on "General John B. Hood and His Military Career"

After the program delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

"The Gallant Hood"

"The Gallant Hood", author John P. Dyer called him in his book of the same title (Bobbs-Merrill, 1950), and the reasons for that admiring title were given by Mrs. Robinson during her presentation.

Lieutenant General John Bell Hood was born in Owingsville, Kentucky in 1831. Hood had a background of hardy pioneers who had fought in the American Revolution and Indian wars.

A West Point graduate, Hood fought against the Indians and later became a cavalry instructor at West Point. In 1861 he resigned from the U. S. Service and was commissioned a colonel in the Confederate Army. He was soon made a lieutenant general and with the heroic Texas Brigade of the Army of Northern Virginia, served in the campaign of 1862. He was wounded at Gettysburg and at the Battle of Chickamauga, Sept. 19-20, 1863.

He replaced General Joseph E. Johnston as commander of the Army of Tennessee when dissatisfaction became general with Johnston's military policies.

Following the war Hood established a cotton firm, but financial reverses and his wife's death in 1879 from yellow fever left his ten children with no financial assistance. The children were adopted by good families from all parts of the country. Hood's experiences in the war were published in Advance and Retreat. New Orleans 1880.

Subject Of DAR Surgeons Of War

The Daughters of the American Revolution met Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the home of Mrs. C. M. Straiton. Mrs. Straiton and Mrs. Charles P. P. Crawley were co-hostess.

Mrs. Crawley presented the program using as her subject, "The Doctors of the Revolutionary War", with special emphasis on Dr. Benjamin Rush, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was one of the best educated men in America at that time and did much to improve knowledge of surgery and to improve surgical practices during that era.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Maxwell, of Farmville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Percy L. Thompson returned home Wednesday from the Virginia Baptist Hospital where she underwent an operation Monday.

A special after offering was taken for the Patron of the Year contest.

The annual Homecoming activities of the Carver Price High School were held Monday because of the rain last Saturday. We are very happy to report that the activities were carried out in a successful manner. The financial drive among the classes was a success. The queens came from the home rooms which reported the largest amounts of money as follows Miss Home Coming from senior class, Mrs H. P. James sponsor; Miss Elementary Queen, from the fifth grade, Mrs. J. C. Webb, teacher; Miss Primary Queen, from the first grade, Mrs. S. G. White, teacher. Mr. Mabry, principal presented each queen with a corsage and a crown during half time activities.

The highlight of the homecoming activities was that our local team won the game. The final score was the Carver Panther 18 and the Charlotte Court House team 13. This is our second conference win. We congratulate our coach and his assistants along with the team for their fine performance.

GFWC Announce Art Contest

The General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Hallmark Card Co. will again sponsor an art talent contest for high school seniors. State winners will compete for one of three national scholarships offered by the card company, according to Mrs. Alan R. Loper, State chairman, Fine Arts Department of the VFWC.

Hallmark has awarded such scholarships since 1953 and the third place 1964 winner was a Virginian, John Warren Johnson, 17, of the George Wythe Hgih School in Richmond.

The scholarships include $1,000, first place; $750 for second place and $600 for third. These provide tuition and fees at an accredited art school or university selected by the winning students.

Any senior high school, academy or private school student in the state who graduates in 1965 is eligible to enter the competition. Mrs. Loper asked that students enter the competition through an affiliated club in his hometown or school district.
